Digitalisation and Development One Smart World

Digitalisation is global. It affects every part of our lives.

But there are still wide disparities in access worldwide. One slogan of Bread for the World is called “If only half of the population of the world is online, the equity is offline”.

This slogan shows the problem we face in the terms to access to crucial factor of digitalisation the world wide web. While internet rollout in the developed world mainly relied on land-lines and home computers, this ‘traditional’ pathway is being bypassed in many developing countries: here, mobile phones are the main driver of digitalisation.

Terms like AI - artificial intelligence, robotics, virtual reality and industry 5.0 come across in our daily life.

But what does it mean?

How will these technologies change our life?

In the seminar we want to deal with opportunities and challenges of digitalization. We will discuss the development aspect of digitalisation. Often, we assume digitalisation is a key driver for development. But is it always ethical correct? Or is digitalisation discriminating people?

We will exchange our views and discuss our experience on the topic.

You are sincerely welcome!
